“ I'm afraid words often bring little consolation. Know that Ann was a strong and resilient woman. Her love for family and friends was unconditional. It was evidenced in Ann's smile or heard through her words. How much she adored and relished her time with Sheri and family. Although it might bring little solace. I take comfort knowing that her earthly burdens have been lifted.

I have many fond memories I can draw upon. The holiday gatherings or summer cousin Brian spent with my family. Cookouts at the Tkaczuk's cottage on Swifts Beach or cousin Sheri's wedding. So even on a gray Cape Cod day, with no blooms yet on the hydrangeas. With a cool headwind whipping my face and surf breaking hard. I can lovingly recall Ann's affection for her favorite coast line. Smile and be warmed knowing, that beyond that infinite horizon. Our loved ones wait for us and we will someday be reunited.

Love and heartfelt condolences sent to Sheri and family.
