“ Hi papwpaw this is Scarlet, I don't think anyone will ever see this though. Maybe not even you. Im at school right now and things are kinda rough..I miss you alot and I promised myself i would never forget the sound of your voice and the only time I remember is when I do something stupid and I hear you call me a little worm in my head. Everytime I'm in a play I cry as i look in audience knowing you're standing out there too. I want to know I like Fox News now...we can watch it whenever you want. Just let me know. See you, Someday.

“ My heart is broken. Danny and I ran into each other at BJ'S, either a view days before his passing or the day of. He was his usual positive loving person that I knew so well when we worked together at Delta. He always had a positive word for everyone, and was a caring, compassionate man, who I was so blessed to work with. He was a blessing to anyone who knew him. Nancy, I will be praying for you and your family. I am so glad of one thing; I told Danny as we parted at BJ'S that I loved him, and I do.
God Bless

“ Danny and I share the same birthday, he being exactly 1 year older than I. He used to say to me when I was having trouble making a decision, "McGuire, do something even if it's wrong!" He was a great friend to me in high school, and the Best Man in my wedding. I loved him dearly. I used to walk home after school with him, and we'd stop at the DQ to get banana splits in a cup. They would be gone by the time we got to his house. When he worked at Pollock Paper, I would ride his Triumph while he was at work. He'd toss me the keys and say, "Don't get killed, McGuire." I took my test for my driver's license in his mother's Dodge; it had push buttons for changing the gears, but it had a tail light out which failed me right off the bat! We went to Daytona Beach during Spring Break and avoided any major trouble, but only by the barest. The only time I ever drank white lightning, I was with Danny in the north Georgia mountains, and got deathly sick for three days. I passed out, and he and the other friend ( I think his name was Don; his brother made the white lightning) we were with put me out in a field, covered me with hay, and I woke up with cows eating off me. I called "help" over and over again, and I could see him rocking in a chair on the porch of this old cabin, and laughing while saying "What you want, McGuire?" I am crying while I write this. I have hundreds of great memories with Danny. He really loved Nancy and was a better man for it.

“ Danny and I worked together for many years at Delta. He was a great friend although I have not seen him for quite some time. We always had good time and he never seemed as though he had a bad moment. He also went to high school with my former wife at Sylvan and they were good friends too. Prayers for all that were close to him.
