“ Donnie was my favorite Uncle I had a lot of good times growing up changing motors and transmission on cars at Paw's house. Him and my parents would rent a VCR and movies and have dinner at one anothers house. I went on many many fishing trips i cant even count them at west point, cedar grove lakes, east newnan lake and several different creeks we were always fishing some where. He had a big influence on my life that's part of who I am today. Donnie you will be greatly missed but NEVER forgotten

“ Well, what I remember the most is when Chrissy, Becca, Kelsey and I started playing dress-up on Donnie while he was asleep one night. We decorated his face with makeup and a few other things. Then the girls decided they wanted to paint his finger and toe nails a nice bright color....lol....and to top it all off, they fill his hands over full with shaving cream and tickle his nose with a feather. Well, we all know the outcome on that one....lol. Well, after all that we are still messing with him, waiting on him to wake up. Finally he wakes up and see's all of us staring at him and he starts looking all around, confused, asking questions and us girls can't say a word cuz we trying not to bust a gut. He then says he has to go pee and as soon as he gets to the bathroom door, we jump up and haul butt thru the house. A few mins later he starts screaming, wanting to know what happened and who got sick and threw up on him cuz he saw the shaving cream smeared all over him and thought it was throw up....lol. It was all pretty funny but I think the funniest part of the whole thing is when he finally discovered his painted nails. He snickered and laughed for a few mins, doing those lil women expressions while telling Chrissy (in a woman's voice) to go get the nail polish remover but when she quickly responds "there is none", everything goes silent...bahahaha. So for the next several hours, he's tripping, trying to figure out how to get it off by morning time for work cuz he worked with the public and no one in the house had money to buy the polish remover...omg, lol...That was not even nowhere near the beginning of all the good times we had together. I still can't believe ur gone...😞

“ I was glad I got to talk to you before you went home to God. I have many memories of the good times we had fishing at West Point, riding in the patrol car and many times we talked when you worked at Crooks Tire. I will miss you my friend. May God Bless your family during this time of loss, I know they know you would want them to remember the good times and know one day they will be with you again. Till we meet again my friend.
