

Grace Stallings Powell

September 22, 1923 - May 12, 2013

Grace Stallings Powell passed gently from her earthly life on Sunday, March 12, 2013. She was born September 22, 1923, to the late Carl Monroe Stallings, Sr. and Ruth Evans Stallings in Griffin, Georgia. She graduated from Spalding High School in 1940 and entered nursing school at Crawford W. Long Memorial Hospital in Atlanta, graduating in 1943 with her RN degree. She served with the Army Nurse Corps in Memphis, Tennessee, after she graduated until 1946, when she took a nursing position at Newnan Hospital in Newnan, Georgia. In 1952, she married Newnan native Asa M. Powell, Sr. In 1962, Grace transferred to the new Coweta General Hospital in Newnan and was on staff there until her retirement in 1985. She was a long time member of Central Baptist Church in Newnan. She enjoyed her involvement with the J.O.Y. Sunday School class and the Mary Glover Nixon Baptist Women's group. She served as secretary/treasurer for both of these groups for many years. She was preceded in death by her husband, Asa Mitchell Powell, Sr., her son, Asa Mitchell Powell, Jr., daughter-in-law, Anne Quinn Powell and her brother, Carl M. Stallings, Jr. She is survived by one daughter, Grace Powell Freeman and her husband, Bob Freeman and two grandsons, Robert Powell Freeman and Lewis Edward Freeman.

She was loved and cared for during her last year of life by a group of dedicated caregivers that included Jackie Bridges, Dottie Edwards, Velma Gulick, Sue Harris and Virginia Orr.

Services will be at McKoon Funeral Home at 38 Jackson Street in Newnan on “ Bob, Grace, and boys We were so saddened to hear of the loss of your mother, mother-in-law and grandmother, and we want you to know how many thoughts and prayers come your way from us. There is nothing quite like the loss of a mother but we understand your grief since both our mothers are gone and we think of and remember them all the time as I am sure you will also do. Let us know if we can do anything. Ron and Emma
