“ Harry and I became friends as teenagers. We hung out, played music together, and talked about life. There are not many people in this life who could make me laugh and cry, just with their deep thoughts and actions. He always looked out for others and had a heart bigger than one could measure. It has been a while since we spoke and I missed him. I'm sad I won't get to see him again, and I'm sad he has been lost to you. He will never be forgotten. I always carry a piece of him with me as a cherished friend.
