“ I met James for the first time when I was a few months old. Margit was my grandmas best friend. They had come to Germany to visit Margits mom and us I immediately loved both of them. James thought me my first words of english and a few years later he was so proud when I was speaking fluently. We started facetiming regularly during the pandemic and also when my grandma passed away. We stayed in contact after but it sadly became less and less. I had always planned to visit once I had the money. I will always miss James dearly and I hope he is in a better place now.

“ J.D. was one of my dearest, closest friends. We first met in 2003 when we moved from St. Louis to Sharpsburg, GA and became neighbors. We spent many times together doing a number of different things, and those times were always special times. He would always greet me with “well hello neighbor, good to see ya.” J.D. was a good Christian man who loved the Lord. I and my wife Shirley had the privilege of being invited to their home often. Margit would always have a delicious meal or snack prepared and we would sit and talk for hours. We would all go out to dinner together most Friday nights, and J.D. and I loved to go out together for a Saturday morning breakfast. Just the two of us. We also had a friendly rivalry with our competing sports teams, Alabama and Mizzou & the Braves and Cards. As J.D.s health began to decline, I had the privilege of coming over and helping him do the things around the house and yard he was unable to do. He was always very appreciative, but It just gave me more time to be around him. He was a joy to be with.

Since we moved back to St. Louis in 2018, we have continued to keep in touch with J.D. and Margit through the years. I will miss J.D. dearly. His memory will always put a smile on my face. He is with the Lord Jesus now, his pains and illnesses are over, and I will see him again one day. What a glad reunion that will be.
