

Juan Angel Ojeda

June 13, 1944 - April 10, 2019

Juan A. Ojeda, nickname given Pasquale by his friends, was born June 13, 1944 in Buenos Aires, Argentina to the late Ricardo Ojeda and Francisca Chiaccio Ojeda. Juan came to the United States when he was 18 on a school visa.

He loved the United States of America so much that he learned its history and came to love the Smithsonian and later Congress, which was his last job in his early 72yrs of age.

He started as a bartender at the Knife & Fork in Washington DC and later came to be the bar manager of the Tiberio which catered to politicians and celebrities. He said recently he loved working at the Congress and Kennedy Center in Washington DC because he felt like he was giving back and supporting our great leaders.

His greatest pride was his son Alex Ojeda, daughter Jackie Ojeda Simpson, and granddaughter Alexandra Simpson. He continued a good relationship with his ex-wife Judy King, as well as his son in law Keith Simpson.
