Before Linda's stroke, we talked on the phone just about every day, usually for hours at a time. Together, we worked out solutions for all the problems of the world. But since her stroke, and then, after my stroke she's been unable to talk and after Fred died and then Bill died, she lived too far away for me or her to drive. I've missed my best friend so much. But, until now, I always knew she was there. Now what? I'm working on a longer letter but it will take some time before it's ready to send. My thoughts are with you all. I just wanted you to know how much I miss her, My heart is broken.
