“Marty was a close friend of mine. She used to laugh and tell me how stuck up I was when she met me. She didn't like sweet potatoes and wouldn't try my Sweet Potato Cake because of that. When she finally tried it she loved it. I made her one for her birthday one year. She would tell people at the store not to eat that cake because it was nasty and no good. She did this because she knew what was left she was taking home with her. She also said my mother gave the best hugs. We both loved her very much. My son did some A/C work for her. He loved her and cried 2 different times for the loss of his friend.
