“ I will always remember Dick for his kindness except when he was trying to beat you at golf and then he still made you feel good. I have had many wonderful days with him and Gil Gabriel, Larry Harton and others on the golf course. Great times at his pool. Like Larry Harton states people our age are in the Red Zone we are now 4th down goal to go.....
My life has been better because of Dick and all the old farts that played golf each week .

“ Dick was my older cousin by 6 years. I looked up to him and another cousin of the same age with something like hero worship. He never treated me like a pesky little guy. I was surprised and honored when he and Bev invited me to be in their wedding when I was 16 or 17. We lost touch over the years because of geography and this and that through no fault of our own. Like most people it was in the back of my mind we'd reconnect one day. I'm sorry it's going to take a bit longer now.

“ Gayle and I were deeply sorrowed when we received the news of Dick’s passing.

We were not only longtime fellow workers at Lincoln Electric, but also great friends. Dick and I had many phone calls where we would jokingly say there was no problem, not even world issues, that we couldn’t solve. Unfortunately we both retired, went on to our next adventure, and the calls ended.

One time when I traveled from Cleveland to visit the distribution center, Dick and Bev most graciously invited me to stay overnight at their home. The next day when I left to return to Cleveland, I happened to forget my pj’s that were left hanging on the hook in the bathroom. On one of his trips back to Cleveland, he took great joy in returning the forgotten garments in front of our many co-workers, commenting on the the race car designs on the shorts. That was his impeccable sense of humor. I’ll never forget.

We extend our deepest condolences to Bev and the family.

RIP Dick,

“ Dick was the consummate gentleman and a pleasure to be around. I will fondly remember the week he and Bev spent with me in Florida last year playing golf and bridge and visiting restaurants and shopping. We had such a good time! Dick and Bev were so welcoming to me when I joined White Oak and I sincerely appreciated their kindness. I cannot seem to mention one of them without the other. They are a very special couple and I love and respect them deeply. Love to the family, Vicki

“ Well, It's finally over, and I'm at a loss.

I was playing golf one day with my dear friend, Gil Gabriel (who knew I was from PA), and he said that a guy from PA just moved into the house two doors down. When the chance to play, and meet him, I (being the inquisitive guy that I am) ask him from what part of PA. He replied, "A small town in NWPA called Mercer."

Immediately, my brain short-circuited. For relatives on my father's side lived in Mercer. I wondered, Dick being much older than I, if he knew any of my relatives. He said, "I played football with a Bill Harton." Well, first cousin. And, he was only 2 years older. So, Dick and I may be onto something.

My bond with Dick would have been cemented even without the "small world" because he was one of "us" old farts - those with certain values and love of country and family. The friendship started immediately, and only grew with time.

I viewed him as an older brother, a mentor, and at times a father I never had. I did have a father who was a provider and a disciplinarian, but he never showered me with love and wisdom. Dick, in our deep conversations (and not always political) and my observations of him and family, made me a better man, husband, and hopefully step-father and grandfather.

So, our generation is at bat (I'm 75), we have left the on-deck circle, and we will continue to lose these great people. We may not be part of "The Greatest Generation," but we are a close second.

I loved this man more than most of his friends. But, this is between Dick and me.

I never knew him at his greatest; but I knew him just a little "over the hill." What a wonderful experience knowing Mr. Morris.

We will continue to be a part of Bev's life, and Patsy and I will always be thinking of the family.
