“ What does anyone say about Robert!?! He was simply the best. We met him in 1985 when we went to show him our software. He listened to the entire presentation and then said "We can do business, if you can do something with my back room." The back room ended up to be rigging shop. We agreed to do the deal and we were off - into the wire rope fabrication industry. Here we are, 25 years later, serving 45 rigging shops with 90 locations because of Robert. We owe him so much. But Robert was more than this. He was a friend and a buddy. He was always available to assist with a software issue or to share a beer and just talk. We will miss him tremendously. We are honored to have known him and to be considered his friend. We love you Robert, Kathy and Marshall

“ I can say that I know, just how you feel having lost my mother 4 months ago. For your hurt is so great and will take God's touch to heal. Yet is it possible for such a wound to completely ever mend when you've lost your husband, father, brother and good friend. Robert was a remarkably good man, a person of devotion and integrity, a man who understood a hard day's work. He was a mentor, a role model and people from all over the county including branch offices, trade associates and competitors are expressing their condolences. Robert was a brilliant business man but a good listener. Many of us remember sitting in his office or home asking his advice on work or personal matters. Things both big and small. He listened to our concerns and offered advice freely. Robert was a loyal, compassionate man and he kept a true good humor's mark. He never made a brow look dark and he saw the lighter side of every situation. A reputation for only a few of these virtues is in itself a good fortune for his family. His legacy he left you was a curiosity about life, a hunger for knowledge, a passion for family and an example of a life whose riches owe little to money. A sense that anything is possible if you work hard, a model of what a father should be. His core accomplishment was family. To die proudly when it is no longer possible to live proudly. Death of one's own free will, at the proper time with a clear understanding of God and with joyfulness. Simply remember that for all these virtues, Robert is not gone unrewarded by his sudden death. Death is after all only the side of life that we can't see from earth's shores. I ask God's comfort on each of you in your time of sorrow. We loved a generous, warm individual. One we will miss greatly. In memory, Rhonda
