Together they had five children, six grandchildren, and nine great-grandchildren.

One of their favorite military bases aside from Germany was in Panama, Central America. After retiring from the Army, Ronald earned a Master's degree in Criminal Justice from Troy State University. He then worked for the Georgia Department of Corrections for another 23 years before finally retiring.

Once retired, Ronald and his wife moved to Fayetteville, Georgia. Together, they enjoyed traveling, especially to the Caribbean Islands, and dancing. His happy place was being in a casino.

Ronald and his wife worked for 9 years in the Columbus, Georgia Soup Kitchen through Holy Family Catholic Church. They also delivered Meals-on-Wheels to the elderly after they moved to Fayetteville. They were members of Holy Trinity Catholic Church in Peachtree City, Georgia.
